

Strangers.

BY IDA KATON.

The friends who meet and pass some pleasant word.
Are oftentimes strangers. All that's best lies neath the shroud of speech—is rarely stirred—
Mute 'neath the laughter and the olden jest.

Some commonplace will linger on the lips,
So distant from the thought we do not voice;
While all we've left unsaid finds its eclipse
In words of import small that seemed our choice.

Friends that are friends by sight and not by speech,
We meet, but give no sign that we have met;
For years we see the face—long years that touch
Each day new truths that we do not forget.

We are but strangers—strangers at the best,
Tho' sunlight smiles alike upon each face;
Sometimes, perchance, the much unsaid, unguessed, will in expression find a wondrous grace.

"The Mocking Bird."

According to a Washington correspondent an old attaché of the White House relates the following incident: "The first time 'The Mocking Bird' was ever played, I believe, was by the Marine Band. It was during Buchanan's term, and his niece, Miss Harriet Lane, presided with a grace rarely equalled at the White House. The leader of the band had requested Miss Lane to allow him to dedicate the piece to her, and she had consented, inviting a large company to listen to the first rendition. The band leader, following the programme, first presented Miss Lane with a card, on which was painted a mocking bird and the inscription, 'To you.' The composition was played in splendid style, and I have never heard it since but what that scene was recalled. I can see Miss Lane bow her acknowledgments again and again, and almost hear the murmur of applause from the assemblage. The flavor of that evening hung about the band concerts for many a day."

A Youthful Merchant.

A Boston boy, on the Fourth of July, showed that he knew how to make an honest penny by a sober business operation. His father gave him twenty-five cents for spending money for the day. He concluded to see if he could not add a little more to it.

He invested it in sugar and lemons instead of fire-crackers, and, borrowing a pitcher and glass from his mother, and taking ice from the family refrigerator, he made some lemonade, and went into the streets to sell it to the thirsty wayfarers.

By noon he returned with an empty pitcher and a profit of nine cents above his original capital, in which he exulted as much as if it had been as many dollars.

By a judicious expenditure of explosive in the afternoon he was enabled to make himself a greater nuisance to the neighborhood, than he could have done if he had been satisfied with his original possessions. And this, from a boy's standpoint, was undeniably a most satisfactory result. Nevertheless, the boy showed that he had some of the qualities, that developed make a successful business man.

Brave Boys at Niagara.

Last week a party of Germans stopping at the Frontier House, Suspension Bridge, among whom was Moritz Witmer, a wealthy brewer from Sexton, Germany, visited the "Maid of the Mist" landing for the purpose of taking a bath. At this point it will be remembered, the current is very rapid, and to one not accustomed to the place it is perilous to venture in. Mr. Witmer, knowing nothing of the water's depth, or the swiftness of the current, got out too far, and would have been carried down the rapids but for the timely assistance rendered by two lads named Henry and William Rodgers, sons of Mr. Henry Rodgers, of the Canadian Customs House at Clifton, who arrived upon the scene as the man was sinking the man in danger at once jumped into the water, and after a hard struggle succeeded in rescuing him. William was the first to reach the drowning man, who grasped him by the neck with a death-grip and drew him under. Henry had by this time reached the scene, and, diving, managed to release the drowning man's hold of his brother, after which the boys succeeded in getting him ashore, the whole party being thoroughly exhausted. Witnesses of the affair say it was one of the most gallant rescues ever performed on the Niagara River.—Niagara Falls Gazette.

A Wrong Theory.

Samuel Shin has learned a lesson which will remain fresh in his mind if he lives to be ten thousand years old. As he entered the lodge to arrange the chairs and benches for the opening of the regular Saturday night meeting, he discovered a big watermelon on the stove. Samuel is not always a respecter of the rights of property. His everyday theory is: "To the finder belongs the watermelon." Having no doubt that this fruit had been left behind by some member at the last meeting, and hoping that he had time to devour the whole of it before any one should come in, he proceeded to business. Scarcely had he laid hands on the melon before there was an explosion which upset everything in the room and landed Samuel under the lavender bench forty feet away. He received three cuts on the nose, two on the chin, had his wool badly frizzled, and it will be seven weeks before he will be able to wink with his left eye.

"Gee'n, I trust dat dis lesson will sink deep into yer hearts an' be taken for a solemn warnin'," said Brother Gardner, as he opened the meeting. "In de fust place de pusson who lets his curiosity lead him aroun' by de nose will trubble in de swamps as often as de highway. In de nex' place, he who has no respects fur de rights of odders will often fin' possession a dangerous thing. Had Brudder Shin stood off a distance of ten feet an' bin content to gaze on dat mellyon an' let his mouf water ober de ideah of what was inside, he would not at dis mimit be lyin' on a bench in de anty-room with his head on a paint-keg an' his heart grievin' fur de long ago. Envy am de fodder on which a small-minded man exists. Jealousy am de weapon of a man who hasn't brains 'nuff to pull himself up. Avarice am a feelin' borrowed from de gods. We will now go ahead an' warm up de machinery of routine bizness."—Detroit Free Press.

Druggists!

The opinion of a reliable druggist as to the merits of any preparation he has for sale can always be depended upon. Having many articles all claiming to be remedies for the same complaint, the druggist naturally recommends that which he knows to be the best, and inquires of his customers as to the beneficial effects of the remedies he has taken. Under all circumstances the druggist is best informed by experience what remedy is applicable to different diseases, and his evidence is more valuable than that of any body else. He will not recommend an article unless he knows that it possesses the merit claimed for it. The druggists throughout the United States unite in saying that Brown's Iron Bitters gives general satisfaction; and while it would be impossible to give the testimony of all who know the benefits of this remedy, still, for the satisfaction of their friends in Michigan, the Brown Chemical Company publish the following statements from well-known druggists doing business in this State, giving their opinion of Brown's Iron Bitters:

Messrs. J. R. Bennett & Co., druggists, Adrian, say: "Brown's Iron Bitters is selling well and giving entire satisfaction. We have no complaint from it."

Messrs. Partridge & Frain, druggists, Laingsburg, Shiawassee county, say: "We find Brown's Iron Bitters to give remarkable satisfaction, doing all it is recommended to do."

Mr. W. C. Tuttle, druggist, Albion, Calhoun county, says: "Brown's Iron Bitters gives good satisfaction, and meets with a ready sale."

Messrs. Dunlap & Hovey, druggists, Fenton, Genesee county, Mich., say: "We do not hesitate to commend Brown's Iron Bitters."

Messrs. R. S. Varnum & Co., druggists, Jonesville, Hillsdale county, say: "Brown's Iron Bitters has a ready sale, and our customers speak highly of it."

Messrs. Walker & Son, druggists, Grass Lake, Jackson county, say: "We find Brown's Iron Bitters to be all that is claimed for it; its sales are increasing daily, and our customers speak in the highest terms of it."

Messrs. Colman, Son & Fisher, druggists, Kalamazoo, say: "We are confident that Brown's Iron Bitters has merit. With its sales have been large and steadily increasing."

Messrs. McMillan & Hessler, Rockford, Kent county, say: "Brown's Iron Bitters is selling well, and gives good satisfaction."

Messrs. C. F. Wright & Co., druggists, Tecumseh, Lenawee county, say: "We are having a good trade in Brown's Iron Bitters, and hear it well spoken of almost every day."

Messrs. Bartholomew Bros., druggists, Blissfield, Lenawee county, say: "We sell more of Brown's Iron Bitters than anything we handle. Customers call for it repeatedly, while with other bitters one bottle is all they will buy."

Mr. J. F. Barrows, druggist, Lawrence, Van Buren county, says: "I have sold Brown's Iron Bitters for the past year with good results."

Mr. A. Parker, druggist, Pontiac, Oakland county, says: "We find an excellent sale for Brown's Iron Bitters, and find it giving the best of satisfaction."

Mr. Nelson Tower, druggist, Mendon, St. Joseph's county, says: "I have good reports from Brown's Iron Bitters, and it gives the best of satisfaction."

Messrs. H. J. Brown & Co., druggists, Ann Arbor, Washtenaw county, say: "The sale of Brown's Iron Bitters is increasing, and it is giving good satisfaction to our trade."

Messrs. Falfree & Livingston, druggists, West Branch, Ogemaw county, say: "Brown's Iron Bitters gives good satisfaction."

Mr. J. O. Thurston, druggist, Almont, Lapeer county, says: "Brown's Iron Bitters is giving satisfaction."

Messrs. Judson Bros., druggists, Brighton, Livingston county, say: "We have a large sale in Brown's Iron Bitters, and find it giving good satisfaction."

Dr. W. H. Nelson, a practicing physician and druggist at Northport, Lenawee county, says: "I sell a large quantity of Brown's Iron Bitters, and find it well liked."

Messrs. Corbin & Woods, druggists, Sherman, Wexford county, Mich., say: "Brown's Iron Bitters sells well with us and gives general satisfaction."

Mr. E. C. Kelly, Ludington, Mason county, says: "I know Brown's Iron Bitters to be an excellent remedy for biliousness and fever and ague."

Mr. Isador Spooner, Ludington, Mason county, says: "As a kidney, liver and ague tonic, Brown's Iron Bitters has no equal."

Mr. Wm. Finley, Ludington, Mason county, says: "I derived great benefit from the use of Brown's Iron Bitters."

Messrs. Brown & Moore, druggists, Albion, Calhoun county, say: "Brown's Iron Bitters has a steady sale."

Mr. J. T. Perham, druggist, Kent City, says: "I have Brown's Iron Bitters for sale, and it gives good satisfaction."

Messrs. J. H. & A. Rohrbacher, Laingsburg, Shiawassee county, say: "We sell Brown's Iron Bitters, and it gives good satisfaction."

With such authority the use of Iron cannot be too strongly urged. Physicians for a long time have conceived that Iron was absolutely necessary, but the trouble has been that it seemed impossible to prepare it so that it would have no injurious effects. Each new discovery was hailed with delight by the profession, only to be thrown aside in a short time as a failure, and it was not until the discovery of Brown's Iron Bitters that Iron was so prepared that it would readily and thoroughly assimilate with the blood and would not blacken the teeth, cause headache, constipation, or other evil effects caused by every other Iron preparation. Brown's Iron Bitters is made only by the Brown Chemical Company, of Baltimore, Md., and contains no whisky or other injurious ingredients. For sale by all respectable dealers in medicine, price, $1.00 a bottle.

WIT AND HUMOR.

The most exaggerated dispatches come by the fish line. Ella Wheeler says that "love is sufficient." Ella has evidently been reading from Dr. Tanner.

It was a Detroit girl who married at 15 so as to have her golden wedding when it would do her some good.

The young woman who sneeringly remarks that men are all alike generally shows her sincerity by taking the first man that offers himself to her.

Miss Emma Abbott is said to have made $100,000 in stock speculation recently. Emma, if you can do that sort of thing, you just let opera alone.

There is one advantage in warm weather. At no other season of the year can you spread the butter on the children's bread so evenly and so thinly.

Says a cynical old lady: "Very handsome mothers are often proud of their very ugly babies. I wonder if butterflies are proud of their caterpillars."

No matter how handsome a young woman may be, when the right man comes along she is ready to yield the palm of her beauty, if he have the sense to ask it.

Takes a woman for ingenuity. A Cleveland girl had a new bonnet she wanted to show, and contrived to get herself called as a witness on a case she knew nothing about.

"Vegetables are ever so much better for a person than meat this hot weather," remarked the head of the family, as he reached for the last slice of beef and left an unsatisfactory ear of corn for the rest of the household.

A woman lately looked at a printing-press at work, turned to her companion, and in a most earnest manner inquired, "Well, Charley, an' them's the things as writes the papers. Be's them what they call editors?"

Yes, my boy, there are 53,200,000 people in this country. And you are only one of them. Just one. Think of that, once in a while, when you get to wondering what would happen to the world if you should die.

It may be interesting to the boys to learn that a mule can fight at both ends. A Louisville boy who tickled a mule about the mouth the other day was frightfully bitten in the hand by the enraged longears.

"I declare!" exclaimed Mrs. Tindie, "I never saw a gal like our Sary Jane. I worked cernmost two hull days on her bathin' dress, and don't you think she got it wringin' wet the fust time she put it on?"

Substitution.—It was at a party. Miss Angelina had been persuaded to preside at the piano. "There!" said Seraphina, as Angelina took up a piece of music, "she has taken a tune from the rack, and now she will put us all on it."

A trade journal gives directions for "preserving harness." Preserved, harness may be considered very palatable by those who like that sort of thing, but we don't want a bit in our mouth.—Norristown Herald.

"Yes, sir," says the oldest resident, "the first trip I made from Lowell to Boston was over the old canal, and I worked my passage on the canal-boat."

"Worked your passage? How?" inquired his audience. "I led the horse," solemnly remarked the ancient mariner.

A certain self-styled authority on wit and humor says that there are but twenty kinds of jokes. We'll wager that we can send him a boy that will play over forty different practical jokes in half a day, unless he assassinate the boy before that time.

A fashion item says that the belle of the period now wears at her waist belt a little music box, faintly playing a single tune. We suppose this is to enable the gentleman to explain to anybody who comes along unexpectedly, that he was winding the box.

Recipe for Angels: "Mamma, what makes angels?" asked a little boy who had been reading of the heavenly inhabitants. The mother glanced out into the orchard, and, with a warning look, solemnly replied, "Unripe fruit, my dear."

Philadelphia mothers now tell their youngsters that if they are right good little boys until the bi-centennial celebration this fall, they will take them down to the river bank and let them play with the United States Navy.—Philadelphia News.

A sarcastic question may sometimes do duty for the severest of replies. "I never consider a dinner perfect without soup," said one man to another; "I always have soup when I dine." "And do you ever have anything else?" asked the other.

"Cain bottomed chairs!" repeated the countryman, studying the upholsterer's sign. "Cain bottomed chairs, did he? I want to know! Can't hardly believe it, but then these ere city chaps know. Won't our dominion be took back, though, when I tell 'em?"

He Smoked.—Bill Snort, a Texas journalist, was about to get into a car on the Central railway, when the conductor, thinking the passenger might prefer the smoking car, asked: "Do you smoke?" "Don't care if I do," reaching out for the expected cigar.

"As for Mrs. So-and-so," remarks one of the guests in a salon where they are passing their friends under review, "her worst fault is that she is bored wherever she goes." "Her lack of selfishness is a still greater defect," says another, "for she insists in not being the only bored person in the company."

A Chicago man came home very early the other evening, kicked his wife and children into the street, locked the door, and then went to bed. His wife made no complaint, but went to a relative's house, and with beaming face exclaimed: "Thank fortune, I know where my husband is this night, anyway."

Lady Visitor—"Your boy looks very bad, Mrs. Jones; what's the matter?" Mrs. Jones—"Yes, ma'am, he is very bad; an' what's more, the doctor has made him worse. I'm sure we poor people need to pray with all our hearts, 'From all false doctrine, good Lord, deliver us.' I never saw its meaning before."

A certain married man got up out of his bed one night and took a new red coverlet and lay down upon it on the floor. In the morning when he got up his wife gave a yell of fright, for on the day before she had been reading of the tattooed man, and for a moment she thought he had broken into her chamber. That new red coverlet is now for sale at a second hand store.

Chance for a Stake.—They were burying a man who had died in Southern Indiana, when a tramp leaned over the fence and inquired, "Was he a statesman?" "No." "Orator?" "No." "Great inventor, or anything of that sort?" "No; he was simply an honest man." "Oh, that's it, eh? Why don't his widdie take the body over to Chicago and put it on exhibition, and make a stake?"

An Augusta man, who has been enjoying a few weeks' leisure at Reed's Neck, Boothbay, recently donned his rubber boots, swung a pail over his shoulder on a hoe, and started out at high tide to dig clams. Not meeting with good success, he approached a settler's cabin, and inquired where he could find the juicy bivalves. The squatter eyed him keenly for a moment, and then remarked: "Young man, I don't know much about city customs, but if you want to dig clams in a flood tide you'll have to leave these parts to do it."

A Rockland woman has made a quilt containing 3,688 pieces. It is unnecessary to say that this Rockland woman is rich on a hundred, never wore glasses, milks all the cows on the farm and makes all the butter, besides doing her housework, helping in the hay-field, going to market every other day, and getting through a thousand and one other duties in the course of twenty-four hours. It is unnecessary to mention these trifling things. Of course this Rockland woman is no exception to the general rule in the innumerable race of patch-workers.

A Petroleum Man's Protest.

In the flush days of petroleum, when thousands of gallons of the stuff went bubbling down the creeks because there was no storage for it, a stingy old Pitholer who had been drilling away for months suddenly tapped a reservoir and out came the oil at the rate of 200 barrels an hour. He had provided six empty barrels for such a contingency, and when these had been filled the dark liquid cut its way down the hillside in a roaring torrent. No one had tanks or barrels to spare, and the old man could only tear his hair as he stood by and realized that a fortune was oozing away from him. In the midst of his despair he noticed a stranger filling a pint bottle from the rushing stream. "Hold on—hold on, there!" he yelled as he ran down the hill—"this oil belongs to me!" "Yes, I know," replied the other, "but where 1,000 barrels are going to waste, you can spare me a pint, can't you?" "I—I suppose I can!" groaned the old man, "but I want you to understand that it's taking a mighty mean advantage of my misfortunes! Don't fill the bottle and use your boots too!"

He Scorned Dishonesty.

An easy-going, honest-minded old country merchant in Iowa had been in trade for a dozen years when he took in his son as a partner. The boy had lived in Chicago for three or four years and was up to snuff. One day after the partnership had lasted about seven months, the old man came down in the morning and found the doors of the store closed and a sign up to the effect that the firm had failed. He walked over to his son's house and asked: "James, did you lock the store?" "I did." "What is the matter?" "Why, we have failed, and can only pay 15 cents on the dollar." "James," continued the old man as he pulled down his hat, "I'm going down and open the door with a crow-bar, and resume business at 100 cents on the dollar! For thirteen long years I have given fifteen ounces to the pound and measured both sides with every yard of cloth, and the idea of taking any further advantage of the Lord goes agin my conscience. Just consider that we have resumed, and come along and scrape out them sugar barrels."—Wall Street News.

Price Reduced.

Anticipating the removal of the Stamp Tax at no distant day, the Magnetic Medicine Co., of Detroit, as will be seen by their new advertisement that appears in to-day's paper, have reduced the price of their medicine from one dollar per package to fifty cents, and when twelve packages are ordered at one time, and five dollars paid for the same, they issue a written guarantee agreeing to refund the money if the full course of treatment fails to effect a cure. We have no doubt the Magnetic Medicine will have a large sale in every section of the country, as few medicines are sold at as low a price, and what is especially in its favor is the guarantee of its effecting a cure. The medicine is sold at all Drug Stores, everywhere. Guarantees are issued in Owosso and county by all druggists.
